Bulganin Asks Pledge Not To Aid Aggressor

Letter Accuses West Of Stalling In Disarm Talks

Bulganin proposed in a new letter today that the United States and European powers pledge to withhold aid from any aggressor in

He also called for the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union as the world's nuclear powers to agree not to base nuclear weapons on either East or West German soil.

His 6,000-word letter, to Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, was moderate in tone but it accused the West of stalling disarmament talks. He said the West's aim was to help West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's reelection campaign. He did not explain how

Reply To June 14 Note

The letter answered one from Macmillan of June 14 which, in turn, answered a previous Bulganin letter on international questions. The newest Bulganin note was filled with expressions of regret at what Bulganin called Macmillan's negative attitude.

The Soviet Premier said, however, that unless the West, and particularly Britain, show some reciprocity in getting some disarmament steps under way, the current U.N. Disarmament sub-

Farmers' Toll Span

A bridge worker stretches his arms to demonstrate the clearance beneath a bridge built across the Colorado River without the approval of the U.S. government or the State of California. The river, navigable and under supervision of the Army Engineers, is the state line between California and Arizona. Cotton farmers banded together and built the 410-foot span as a toll bridge at a point where there is no other means of crossing. Now the surprised federal government, pointing out the law provides possible fines and jail sentences, wants the private enterprise bridge altered to permit "reasonable" navigation, something the owners contend is already possible

Sweeping Victory For South Reduces Filibuster Threat

WASHINGTON, July 24 (A) -President Eisenhower's civil rights bill was stripped in the Senate today of all its enforcement powers except those covering voting

The vote on the crucial issue, coming after five hours of debate, was 52-38.

It was a solid victory for South ern senators, who have argued for weeks that the bill as it came from the House would permit the federal government to force racial integration of the schools in their states and impose other social Thirty-four Democrats and 18 Republicans joined to adopt an amendment by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) and Aiken (R-Vt) to eliminate almost all of Section 3 from the measure. Thirteen Northern Democrats and 25 Republicans voted against the amendment.

Filibuster Threat Reduced

Section 3 would have empowered the attorney general, on his own initiative, to seek federal court injunctions against all kinds of civil rights violations or threats of violations. Persons flouting the injunctions could be charged with contempt of court and tried by federal judges without a jury.

Northern supporters of the amendment hailed the vote as diminishing the chances of a Southern filibuster against what's left of the bill and increasing the

No New Statehood At This Session

Public opinion polls for years have listed a majority of citizens of the continental United States as favorably inclined toward the granting of statehood to Hawaii and Alaska, but Congress continues to look upon such proposals with a jaundiced eye. Washington observers regard the chances of favorable action being taken at this session of Congress as zero.

If a poll taker asks an average American his views on a subject of this sort, chances are he hasn't done much (if any) serious thinking about it. Most Americans probably have an amiable feeling that Hawaii and Alaska are entitled to statehood, but they don't really care much either way.

Congress, which has committees to delve deeply into the subject, may be in a better position to make a wise decision.

In the case of polyglot Hawaii, moreover, there is considerable opposition from southern Senators, who are not prepared to welcome as a state territory where what they describe as "mixing of the races" goes further than anywhere else under the American flag. And they see no compelling reason for admission of Alaska either.

But there is northern opposition, too. It is widely regarded as unwise to set a precedent by admitting territories not a part of the continental U. S. as states. State government in either case might prove too costly for local taxation, in which event Washington would be called upon to directly foot part of the bills for state governments, another mischievous prece-

People's Capitalism

I have often wondered who was responsible for the slogan "People's Capitalism," which numerous American agencies scattered about the world in competition with Soviet Russia's "People's Democracy." Both terms are, of course, meaningless, capitalism being a system of the individual's authority over his own earnings, a system which today exists nowhere, whereas democracy is the antithesis of the dictatorship of the proletariat neither of which exists in Soviet Russia, its allies or satellites. Slogans are usually like thatjust downright lies.

It would seem that the phrase "People's Capitalism" was developed by the United States Information Agency but accepted by the Advertising Council as its special task for 1956-57. What the Advertising Council wanted to tell mankind was how broadly the benefits of the American economic system are shared and the extent to which the ordinary American has money at work helping to produce goods and services.

This is indeed a noble purpose if propaganda of this nature ever has any value, which is very doubtful. The great propagandists in history, Paul, Mahomet, Karl Marx, advocated ideas rather than financial benefits; Winston Churchill put spine into a wavering Britain, by advocating abnegation - blood, sweat and tears-just as Gautama, Francis of Assisi and Gandhi offered poverty and faith rather than material benefits to a saddened world. Americans regard themselves as very practical people and believe that they can accomplish anything by advertising and public relations. They can prove that by their ability to sell anything from chewing gum to automobiles in huge quantities.

However, why is it that they have not been able to sell Thomas Jefferson or even Franklin D. Roosevelt to the peoples of Europe and Asia? Is it because what they did try to sell, the superiority of the automobile over the bicycle or the camel, did not interest those peoples? Why have they not been able to influence any part of Asia that the United States is a friendly, cheerful, free-giving nation without ulterior motives and without a desire to seize any land or any people? Nobody believes that to be true in Asia, not even the Japanese and Filipinos who should know how Apparently what these sellers of soup and steel and cosmetics do not understand is that when a people is in real trouble, when life seems to be utterly unbearable, what the individual wants is not some more things but a greater assurance of love and peace.

It is like a little boy at a place like Coney Island who all day long is demanding hot dogs and pink candy and corn-on-the-cob, and a ride over this and over that. Then the tummy begins to ache and the eyelids grow heavy and he puts his hand in Mamma's hand and all he wants is a shoulder to cuddle against and the pat of a loving hand on the back of his head.

He has had all the things that he ever dreamed of, but what he really wants is the love of those who can give him comfort. The great force of the teachings of Jesus in the Roman Empire was that It came when Rome was at its richest in things but at its poorest in faith and the little men out of Palestine and Syria taught love and faith and hope, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden . . ." They did not offer a single tangible thing; they only offered ideas.

The same phenomenon occurred in China where American, British and other business men and missionaries were building big hospitals and universities and the Communists came empty-handed with the slogan of national independence. Between 1919 and 1925, I studied this particular phenomenon as closely as any man who is alive today and I can say truthfully that the Russians gave the Chinese Communists nothing but demanded the greatest sacrifices. They recognized that what the young men and women wanted was an opportunity to sacrifice themselves, to go through hardships, to suffer privations.

The Advertising Council ought to endow a seat in a university to do research in historical psychology, so that it might be proved to their contributors that it is easier to sell an American girl a new hair set than it is a Buddhist the idea that possession of material things is essential to his achieving eternal attend because of a death in his U.S. May Become Embroiled In Oman Uprising

By Joseph Alsop

There is an obscure tribal uprising in the remote British protected Arabian Sultanate of Muscat and Oman. The Foreign Office sends into action its unique private army, the trucial scouts, while the War Office alerts the regular British troops in the area. And the whole ambitious structure of the new American policy in the Middle East begins to quake and tremble like a boy camper's puptent in a high wind.

This, surely, is a fairly alarming sequence of cause-and-effect. Until very recently, all official fingers, both British and American, were rather desperately crossed. The hope was everywhere voiced that "this disorder in Oman can be locally handled" —for which read "handled by the obscure and irregular and mainly Arab trucial scouts, without the importation of regular British troops But that hope is all but dead, since British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd's statement on Monday to the House of Commons, foreshadowing active British intervention in Oman. As a result, the little trouble in Oman can mean big trouble, both in the Middle East and in the Anglo-American alliance. And while saying a prayer for a good outcome, it is well to understand the reasons why such small trouble may produce such big trouble. In brief, the last old style British outposts in the Middle East are the Persian Gulf coast Sheikhdoms and the Aden protectorate, which together comprise the whole Southern and Eastern shores of the Arabian peninsula. The two most valuable pieces of totally arid real estate in the world are the Sheikhdoms of Kuweit and Qatar, with their truly fabulous oil riches. and Sheikhdom of Bahrein, while less wealthy, is also a respectable oil producer. Both efforts came to nothing for three reasons. First, the British said they "could not let down a friend, "and as the sole Arab leader who publicly endorsed the Suez venture, the Sultan of Muscat and Oman certainly comes under that heading. Second, the British said that if they showed weakness anywhere on the Gulf Coast, their good faith would be questioned everywhere-meaning in the really important Sheikhdoms of Kuweit, Qatar and Bahrein.

Buraimi gave a golden chance to the Egyptians and the many powerful advisers of King Saud who bitterly opposed his break with Gamal Abdel Nasser. The tribes of Oman have therefore been paid to rise against the Sultan in favor of the exiled Imam. The real aims are to inflame the row between King Saud and the British: to force the British into overt "imperialist" action which will inflame the whole Arab world: And so to cause a break between King Saud and the United States.

Fortunately, the British seem to be handling the ugly little crisis with great sobriety. But the danger is still grave that the new American Middle Eastern policy will be defeated by the outbreak of trouble between King Saud and a third party, in this case the British. Life Expectancy In U.S. Continues To Increase

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

There is a difference between the life span and life expectancy. Confusion comes because both terms are used when discussing length of life. The life span is the biologic rate of existence and refers to how long man can live. There is no limitation but we will settle for 100 years. Some authorities believe the limit should be set at 140 years. Life expectancy is approaching 70 years in contrast to 48.2 years in 1900 and 38.3 in 1850. This does not mean that more and more people are living to age 70, even though this undoubtedly is true a group basis, usually per 100,000 of the population, and represent the projected average length of life of all its members. In other words, at any age following birth, life expectancy is the average number of years remaining to each person in the group. The figure changes each year and when a particularly hazardous period is passed, the chances of living longer are better and this good fortune is reflected in the life expectancy.

Childhood is particularly dan-

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A real estate salesman in Denver was trying to sell a big tract of Colorado property sight unseen to an eastern operator. "My client wants a place that's pretty high up," said the easterner. "How high is this property?" I couldn't say exactly," admitted the salesman, "but it's just 800 miles to Pike's Peak-and it's downhill all the way.'

A cannibal mother and her child scanned the heavens while a big airliner zoomed by, "What's that?" demanded the child. "It's something like a lobster," explained the mother, "You only eat what's inside."

at birth is so good is that we are making childhood safer thru vaccines, penicillin, and progress in infant care. Life expectancy in the middle-aged or older male has not changed much. The man who lived to be 60 in 1850 had to be healthy to survive. His life expectancy on reaching 60 was 15.6 years, in contrast to the 1953 figure of 15.8. The difference is not great but represents some improvement

Why are there so many 70 year olds today? Because more and more people have survived the dangers of the early years. Every time we save 10,000 babies through a pediatric or obstetric miracle, it means that 10,000 more individuals will have a chance of reaching 70.

The medical profession has turned its research guns on geriatrics and the death rate may be postponed one or more decades through scientific attacks on cancer and arteriosclerosis.

Senators probing Jones's background have found that he accepted fees as a lawyer while supposedly serving the people of Kansas on the State Corporation Commission. Washington Whispers

Edward Bennett Williams, who scored Washington's No. 1 legal victory in defending teamsters strongman Jimmy Hoffa, slipped over to Teamsters Union headquarters during the trial to confer with a squad of lawyers. . . They urged him to take a Negro attorney with him into the court to influence the eight Negro jury members. This was to offset the government which had a Negro attorney sitting at the lawyer's table. Instead, it was arranged for exheavyweight champ Joe Louis to visit the courtroom and make a show of his friendship for Hoffa. . . . FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover was furious over Hoffa's acquittal. This makes the third big headline case the FBI has developed which was lost. Others were Judith Coplon, who allegedly spied for Russia; Johnny Dio, who allegedly ordered the acid-blinding of columnist Victor Riesel; and now Jimmy Hoffa, who allegedly bribed a Senate rackets investigator. . . . Sen. Bill Knowland was about to yield to southern arguments and kill most of part 3 of the civil rights bill, when he got a call from Negro leaders. They had been to see Vice President Nixon, who stood pat for a strong bill and no compromise on part 3. Knowland and Nixon are political rivals. At summer dances you see ASKING many men perspiring as they trip the light fantastic. Their feminine partners, however, appear delightfully cool. The female of the species is so constructed that her body is to some extent airconditioned by nature. Then consider what the average woman wears in the good old summertime. That is, practically nothing. Her attire weighs less than an ounce. A man is compelled at dances to wear a coat, a buttoned-up shirt and a neck binding

Vaunted New York Defense Cracks: Berra Hits Homer

NEW YORK, July 24 (A) - The Chicago White Sox drubbed the New York Yankees today, 7-2, as Billy Pierce won his 14th victory of the season and thereby reduced the Yankees' lead over the Sox

Luis Aparicio led the White Sox attack with three singles and a triple as the vaunted Yankee defense cracked wide open. In the first, Gerry Coleman let Aparicio's grounder go through his legs and two runs scored. In the fifth Mickey Mantle misjudged Aparicio's drive to deep center and the ball went over his head for a triple. In the eighth Earl Torgeson stole second and went to third on Yogi Berra's bad throw.

Pro Football Seeks No Pay TV Bell Tells Congress

League Head Says Farm System Out

Free TV Popularized, Sport Commissioner Tells House Probers

WASHINGTON, July 24 (A) Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League told Congress today pro football wants nothing to do with pay television or farm systems.

Free home TV has popularized the sport. Bell testified before the House Antitrust Subcommittee.

He also declared pro football chooses "to go on our own" without minor league affiliations.

With those statements, the chunky commissioner set himself opposite major league baseball club owners who previously appeared before the subcommittee in its investigation of the legal status of professional team sports.

Presidents Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants both had said toll television is the coming thing for their enterprises. The dollar possibilities of pay TV have developed into an important consideration in the proposed shift of their National League teams to the West Coast.

Hears Vigorous Defense The subcommittee also had farm system from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and other officials of the game. Bell conflicted with them or those points. Otherwise his appeal for liberation of football's operating methods from federal antitrust laws paralleled that of base-

Sitting in front row seats of the subcommittee's arena in the House Office Building were such past and present stars as Harold (Red) Grange, Sid Luckman, Churck Bednarik, George Connor and Jack Jennings Bell To Return

They and George Halas, president of the Chicago Bears, were sidelined until tomorrow. Bell, questioned closely for almost three hours before the lawmakers recessed the hearing, also comes back

Bell said revenue from sponsored TV has helped football over the financial hump but the NFL "doesn't think so much of money" that it would scrap free TV in favor of toll telecasts.

Says Team Is Not Wanted In N.Y.

BROOKLYN, July 24 (A) - The Jacksonville, Fla., Journal today quoted Emil (Buzzie) Bavasi, vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, as saying the Brooklyn baseball club would move to Los Angeles for the 1958 season.

But Bavasi said in Brooklyn the Journal sports editor, Jack Hairston, had "jumped to conclusions." and he merely had said "it looks as if we are not wanted in New York or Brooklyn." Hairston interviewed Bavasi at Jacksonville late yesterday.

In Manhattan a spokesman for Mayor Robert Wagner said: "The city is doing everything possible to see if something can be done to keep them here but evidently they don't want to stay, so let them

Contaminated Food Blamed For Illness

Analysis Shows Germs In Ham

The Allegany County Health Department said yesterday that food contamination was the cause of the violent illness of 25 to 30 persons who attended a wedding reception Saturday at the Mt. Savage Fire Hall

W. Arnold Gunther, chief bacteriologist of the health department, who made an analysis of a portion of the food, said staphyfound in canned ham used in making sandwiches which were

It was not determined just how the germs got into the food, Dr. Gunther said. He added that this type of germ is a common contamination found in food poison-

The food was analyzed in the branch laboratory of the State Department of Health which is maintained in Cumberland at the Public Safety Building.

J. B. Dowling, the department's chief sanitarian, pointed out that several months ago a directive was sent to all handlers of canned ham informing them the food must be properly refrigerated.

Warren Souder and Victor Schenck of the Federal Food and Drug Administration were in Cumberland yesterday to confer with health department officials ii. connection with the illness suffered by the area residents.

Mr. Souder pointed out that his prime concern is whether the food has been involved in an terstate shipment.

County Liquor Deliveries Up In Fiscal Year

Average Figures To 1.43 Gallons

An average of 1.43 gallons of distilled spirits for each of Allegany County's 89,556 residents was delivered to retailers in the fiscal year which ended June 30, according to figures released by State Comptroller J. Millard

The comptroller's figures show that 127,998.66 net gallons of distilled spirits were delivered to Allegany County retailers in the fiscal year which ended June 30. During the previous fiscal year 122,906.78 gallons were delivered in this county. That was 1.37 gallons per capita on the basis of 1950 population of 89,556.

The 4.1 per cent increase in the net gallons delivered to retailers meant that $63,999.32 was received for the Allegany County Services for F. Brooke Whiting, treasury in the past fiscal year. 1.
